Chicago Sky Gets Weiss Doctors In New Partnership
Mar 31, 2010

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago's WNBA team is getting new doctors.

Weiss Memorial Hospital's orthopedic and sports medicine experts have announced a new partnership with the Chicago Sky. It makes Weiss the pro basketball team's exclusive health care partner.

Hospital CEO Frank Molinaro says the relationship helps Weiss honor its commitment to educating the community about healthy lifestyles.

Weiss also is sponsoring Chicago Sky Basketball clinics in the metro area.

Weiss doctors have affiliations at Chicago's academic and research facilities, including the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois and Loyola University.

Weiss' three-year partnership with the Sky begins with the 2010 season, which starts in May.
